

Community uses Boston solar cabinet 2MWh

BCSC will develop our first community-owned solar array on the rooftop of 195 Bowdoin Street in Dorchester, home to the Dorchester Food Co-op store. We are currently looking for more potential ...

The award to Boston Community Solar Cooperative - a Boston-based non-profit that has been working on bringing community-owned solar to low-income neighborhoods- will be used to ...

Our team completed extensive research into what it would take to enter the solar development space and set out to co-develop a community solar project with residents that would provide maximum ...

We're putting local solar in community hands as a vital component in addressing the climate crisis via clean, renewable energy, and a tool to reduce energy burdens, improve resilience, create jobs and ...

The project is in partnership with Boston's leading community action agency, Action for Boston Community Development (ABCD), and other local organizations, and will bring new green job ...

In this webinar, hosted by the Clean Energy States Alliance (CESA), guest speakers from Energy Allies and the Boston Community Solar Cooperative (BCSC) discussed their adaptable ...

Listen to the full episode and explore more resources below -- including a transcript and summary of the episode.

In urban landscapes like Boston across the nation, nonprofit organizations are pioneering community-owned solar power projects aimed at bringing renewable energy--and its economic ...

Their plan is to place a solar project on the roof of the Dorchester Food Co-op and launch a community-owned solar cooperative. Advocates say this will bring energy equity to Boston's low ...

This innovative collaboration with Enel X will enable us to take the campus to the next level by generating and storing energy in a fashion that minimizes our costs and maximizes the value of the ...

Web: <https://idsolar.co.za>